First Day School Underway, Exploring the Meaning and Experience of Community

On First Day, October 14, “Bodies,” the youngest First Day Class, took turns reading aloud from the Bible story about the creation of life on Earth. They then talked about sharing the Earth with living creatures and then, after some movement activities, gathered around a large drum and communicated through individual and group rhythms.

In a neighboring room, the older “Minds” class sat in a circle and shared with each other their individual gifts and interests. They then talked about what makes a community and how they can contribute to it by working together, worshipping together, sharing common interests and respecting one another. They learned about Helen Keller, who was blind and deaf, and about how difficult yet crucially important it is to communicate. This was followed up creating and sharing individual art projects.

Callie Janoff Interns with Pastoral Care Subcommittee

Callie Janoff will be interning with Ministry and Counsel's Pastoral Care Subcommittee for the next few weeks as part of her internship with Jewish Theological Seminary.

We are happy to welcome Callie and look forward to working with her.

Among other things, the Subcommittee is dedicated to helping Friends and their caregivers in times of illness.

This help can take various forms and is generally available as needed. Most recently a group was organized to help Nichole Lau and her husband, Matt Lombardi, while she recovers from surgery and chemotherapy.

We are all inspired and gratified at the outpouring of offers of help from members and attenders alike!

Although the list of helpers for Nichole and Matt is complete right now, you can contact anyone on the Subcommittee to have your name added to a general list for others needing care in the future.

Alternatives to Violence Prison Program Reunion

On First Day, October 14, Brooklyn Meeting hosted our second reunion of formerly incarcerated men and Quaker volunteers who participated in the Alternatives to Violence (AVP) program as well as the Quaker Meeting for Worship in prison. These reunions take place twice a year and include introductions by both groups and descriptions of the work they undertake in the prisons. This includes cultivating non-violent skills and attitudes and the efforts they are making with the support of “Landing Strip,” a Quaker program that assists formerly incarcerated participants in AVP as they re-enter society. A lunch and socialization followed the Meeting.

October Meeting for Business Committee Members Released

Six Friends were released from service on committees.

Improvements to the Meetinghouse

The Property Committee reported that a number of improvements have been made in the Meetinghouse during the past year. These include: new carpeting in the foyer, meeting room and stairs, the cleaning and re-pointing of bricks in the front of the building and the installation of new ovens in the kitchen.

ing but not limited to:

and length.

—Contributions should generally be brief, between 150-450 words in length. Pieces of greater length can often be accommodated, as there may be flexibility regarding how many pages we can make a particular issue.
