June Meeting for Business Considers Membership Applications and Financial Contributions

Long-Time Attender Applies for Membership

A letter of application from Sheila O'Hara, clerk of Brooklyn Property Committee and Meeting attender since 1982, was given its first reading. Sheila first attended 15th Street Meeting, and then Brooklyn. She has faithfully served Brooklyn Meeting as clerk of the Property Committee for more than eight years. During this time the Meetinghouse exterior has been cleaned and repaired, and new windows are scheduled to be installed. This is perhaps an appropriate time to appreciate the contributions made to our Meeting by long-time Attenders -- always with the hope that they will eventually formally join the Meeting.

Peace and Social Action Committee Asks for Suggestions for Meeting Contributions to Quaker Social Action

The Meeting Treasurer reported that substantial funds are still available to give to service organizations related to Friends. $2,732 remains in the Leigh Fund, as well as a $2,500 surplus in the annual budget. Possible Quaker recipients could include:

Sharing of World Resources as well as THARS International, a Quaker service rehabilitating victims and perpetrators of torture in Burundi and Congo.)

Members of the Peace and Social Action Committee can provide information on other Quaker service activities, and will also receive your suggestions. They are: Amy Stuart, Heloise Rathbone, Ken Diamondstone and Mitch McEwen.

Adult Education Session Explores Living a Quaker Life

The final session of the series on Quakerism focused on how we as Friends translate our beliefs into our lives in the world. This topic encouraged a sharing of personal experiences and inner struggles. Friends emphasized the belief 'that there is that of God in every person' as central to the way we interact with the other people in our lives.

Another basic Quaker value that Friends illustrated from their personal experiences was the belief in continuing revelation -- that we make mistakes, accept our imperfections and keep growing toward the truth. Friends value sharing with others in this process. Life experiences with addiction, serving through work and taking a stand were described. Friends also emphasized the importance of inner silence, slowing down, listening and simplifying in order to remain centered.

Participants repeatedly expressed their appreciation of the non-judgmental attitudes they find in Brooklyn Meeting, as mistakes, struggles and differing backgrounds and beliefs are accepted lovingly.

First Day School Picnic Enlivens Quaker Cemetery

After the worship on June 15, the end of the First Day School year was celebrated at the annual First Day School picnic. The picnic took place at the cemetery in Prospect Park. Children had prepared in advance, as a variety of original sandwiches were assigned to different groups. Once on the cemetery lawn, blankets were laid out for the less active guests, cupcakes were frosted, and games and exploration followed. Children played "Capture the Flag," took nature walks, and explored the various grave stones from the past.

Children are invited to attend informal activities at 10:45 AM on First Days during the summer in the First Day classrooms; adult volunteers are most welcome to join them. First Day School will resume in the fall with the annual Pancake Breakfast and information session.

Equality

"Much misunderstanding, fear and hatred throughout the world comes from a common tendency to stereotype people and speak of groups as solid blocs, losing sight of the varied and precious individuals who compose them."
